 3. There lives a maid and a bach - lor now, Two lives so dark and drear,..... With cute lit - tle coup - le with old folks ways, They soon in - to court - ship fell..... They cov - ered her face with her ti - ny hands And wiped a warm tear a - way,..... Near - no one to join in a sin - gle thought, A sin - gle bright hope or fear,..... The dreamed of a day when they sure-ly would wed, And cas-tles were built in air;..... But by lay a note from the one she had loved, It begged for her hand and heart,..... But days of sweet youth and af-fec-tion have gone, The lays of young love are sung,..... And each of them soon had an-oth-er sweetheart, 'Tis so with each young af-fair..... now she had lear-ned to live with-out love, And still they must live a-part..... each of them now has a co-ld, barr'n heart, From fall-ing in love to young.....

Chorus.

'Twas lov-ing while too young,..... That made the bright hope vain;..... The soul whose love is gone,..... Will ne'er its charm re-gain,..... Some lives are dark and drear,..... Some wed-ding bells un-rung..... Some hearts are lone and sad,..... From love..... too young.....
